Letter from the Editor

I am pleased to announce that Dr. Scott Freunds Schuh from the University of Minnesota-Duluth, has agreed to take over the editorship of Cartographic Perspectives beginning with the first issue of 2001. Scott will be CP's fourth editor. David DiBiase served beginning with the conception of the journal in 1989 to 1992. Sona Andrews was editor between 1993 to 1996. I have served as editor since 1997 with the help of a number of guest editors. Jim Anderson will continue as Assistant Editor and will be invaluable in the transition. Scott will appoint his own Editorial Board and section editors. The outgoing editors wish the new team good luck on their endeavor.

This 36th issue of CP is the longest and most colorful ever published. With 100 pages, this issue reflects the fact that the rate of article submissions has increased over the past few years. All of the featured articles published in this issue include color illustrations as well. We hope to continue publishing at least one color issue every year.

Finally, we were saddened to hear of the death of Borden Dent, a member of our Editorial Board. Borden, chair of the Department of Geography at Georgia State University and best known for his textbook entitled Thematic Cartography, died of complications from an operation at the age of 62 on August 17, 2000. I enjoyed working with Borden on the Board. His reviews of articles were always concise and to the point. CP will miss his service. Cartography will miss a great teacher and scholar.
